

From: Adam Yamada-Hanff [e-mail address redacted]
Sent: Friday, June 15, 2012 12:51 PM
To: micro_entity
Subject: Broadening Micro-Entity Fees

Hello,

I would like the USPTO to broaden the definition of Micro-Entity status so that small inventors, like myself, can afford to file patents. I believe the foundation of innovating in this country is largely dependent on individual inventors making new, exciting, and useful products. Without allowing an affordable way to let individual inventors pursue their inventions we could fall behind against other fast growing economies and countries. Please consider reducing patent fees by 75% for Micro-Entities.

Thanks

--

Adam Yamada-Hanff
Founder and Editor Adam's Auto Advice
Twitter: <http://twitter.com/@adamsautoadvice>