

Untitled

From: Christopher Parkinson [e-mail address redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, December 14, 2011 11:19 PM
To: SatelliteOffices
Subject: Satellite USPTO needed in Silicon Valley

To whom it may concern,

My father was one of the finest polymer chemist in the world where he created an ink that was erasable, where he created the inks used for barcodes in the US Post Office, and even the dye used to keep beer in bottles fresh from ultraviolet light damage. All this was done in SRI International just north of Silicon Valley. He used one of the finest patent attorneys Michael Hughes in Santa Clara, California who used the USPTO in Sunnyvale as patent searching. I can remember going there with my father to research patents and later on using East.

In memory of my father and his wondrous patent attorney I request a satellite office is created in Silicon Valley.

Best regards,

Christopher Parkinson
Broker DRE: 01768460
Los Altos, CA
[phone redacted]