I am a small business person and I have been doing print on demand business. It has come to my attention that you may soon charge for LOPS. This is very unsettling as this has been the only means a business like mine has, to fight frivolous trademark abuse, by entities who abuse the system. Common words and phrases are being trade marked all willy-nilly causing designs that have been up for years to be taken down all of a sudden based on a frivolous, contentious trademarks. So my take is this, that fee should be charged to these entities that are abusing the system, taking up our valuable time (and yours off course).

Yours Sincerely
Job Muriuki.
