A Simple Concept

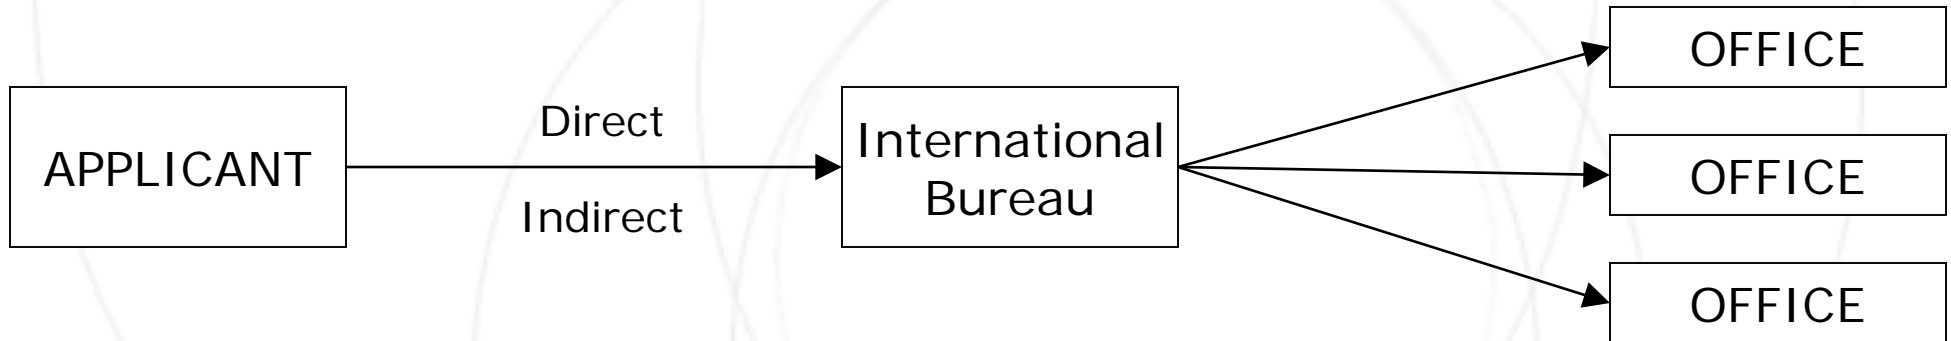

The centralized acquisition and maintenance of industrial design rights by filing a single international application for a single international registration in which one or more Contracting Parties are designated (DCP) resulting in a so-called “bundle of rights”.

- Affords right holders great flexibility in targeting national, regional or global markets for particular goods.
- Cost-effective and efficient, thereby creating opportunities that would not otherwise exist for any enterprise with a limited legal budget.

Procedural Treaty

- The Hague System is primarily a procedural arrangement, it does not determine:
 - the conditions for protection;
 - the refusal procedure to be applied when deciding whether a design may be protected; or
 - the rights which result from protection.
- Such issues are governed by the law of each Contracting Party designated in an international registration.

Procedure

Hague System – Geneva Act

Procedure

Security Clearance, if any
Forwards international application to International Bureau in a timely manner

Examines formalities, not substantive issues
Records in the International Register
Issues a registration certificate to holder
Publishes in WIPO Bulletin (standard, immediate or deferred)
Notifies contracting parties designated in international registration; has effect as a national or regional application

Substantive examination:
Refusals must be made within set time limits from publication of international registration

No Refusal = effect as a national or regional grant of protection

Refusal: national or regional procedure followed

International Application

- No prior national/regional right required
- Multiple designs up to 100
 - “Monoclass” (Locarno Classification)
- Principal Fees
 - Basic Fee
 - Publication Fee
 - Designation Fee
 - Standard (3 levels), or
 - Individual Fee (if “examining office” or IGO)
- Paris Article 4 priority (“first filing”)
 - Can claim priority, or can be basis for claim of priority
- Paris Article 11 protection (“international exhibition”)

Effects of an International Registration

- As a national/regional application
 - As of the date of the international registration
- As a grant of protection
 - No Refusal
 - Date of expiry of refusal period, at the latest, but can be later (if “examining Office” or opposition)
 - Date of optional statement of grant of protection prior to expiration of refusal period
 - Refusal
 - Date of withdrawal/statement of grant of protection, at the latest
 - “At the latest” means grant could be earlier
 - E.g., date of the international registration

Duration of Protection of an International Registration

- Initially valid for 5 years from date of international registration
 - Minimum duration of protection set by governing treaty
 - Geneva Act: 3 x 5-year term = 15 years
 - Maximum duration of protection set by national/regional law of each DCP
 - 6 months before the expiration of a 5-year term, the IB unofficially notifies holder of the maximum duration of protection in each DCP

Centralized Maintenance

- Appointment [DM/7] or cancellation [DM/9] of representative before IB
- Change of name and address of holder [DM/6] or representative [DM/8]
- Change of ownership [DM/2]
- Limit designs in one or more DCP(s) [DM/3]
- Renounce all designs in one or more DCP(s) [DM/5]
- Renewal in 5-year terms [DM/4]

General Advantages

National/Regional Route

- many Offices for filing
- many languages
- many currencies
- many registrations
- many renewals
- many modifications
- foreign attorney or agent
first needed at filing

International Route (Hague System)

- one Office for filing
- one language
- one currency
- one int. registration
- one renewal
- one modification
- foreign attorney or agent
first needed if refused

Hague System for the International Registration of Industrial Designs

The Hague system of international registrations of industrial designs is applicable among the countries party to the Hague Agreement. It is administered by the International Bureau of WIPO located in Geneva, Switzerland.

This system gives the owner of an industrial design the possibility to have his design protected in several countries by simply filing one application with the International Bureau of WIPO, in one language, with one set of fees in one currency (Swiss Francs). An international registration produces the same effects in each of the designated countries as if the design had been registered there directly unless protection is refused by the competent Office of that country.

The Hague system simplifies greatly also the subsequent management of the industrial design, since it is possible to record subsequent changes or to renew the registration through a simple single procedural step with the International Bureau of WIPO.

Warning

On several occasions, the attention of the International Bureau has been drawn to the fact that certain organizations are sending letters to the owners of international registrations, inviting them to register their industrial designs in publications which appear to be of an official nature. The International Bureau warns the owners of international registrations and their agents that such a publication has absolutely no legal effect in regard to the protection of the said industrial designs and is therefore unnecessary.
