General Comment

Huge corporations should not have any influence with the PTAB. The PTAB allows it and the reason they do is because it's for their own business advantage.

It is for the sole reason to destroy and kill the inventor.

These corporations know if they dismantle the founder of the patent they can take the idea and won't have to pay the creator. They also know that they can not compete with them. They have deep pockets and it would financially destroy the innovator. Then the corporations could steal the idea without consequences.

Once the inventor is issued a patent there should be an insurance plan that would help the inventor protect their investment. These corporations attack these patents on purpose. It is their new business plan that is very successful. The PTAB and corporations work together to profit from the innovation of inventors.

The PTAB invalidates almost all patents and it is for a goal.
It is their way of abducting the idea and it is extremely malicious.

The inventor should be able to fight for their patent in court with a jury covered by an insurance plan that is not expensive. There should also be rules in place that would help the inventor. It should also discourage the PTAB from taking the patent back. It would also prevent unacceptable behavior with these businesses and the repercussions would be great.

It's just a scam so that the corporations do not have to pay the inventor royalties. The PTAB i bet is getting paid for every patent that they invalidate.

Lives of these innovators are being demolished. This has to stop. When the inventor is up against the PTAB and corporations it is a suicide mission and it is a guarantee to fail.

Only the PTAB and corporations walk away as winners. It is allowing them to be a thief without the obviousness of being a crook and getting away with it. I just can't help thinking that the only reason the PTAB was created was to rip-off the inventor for the corporations. What a great scandal that no one would figure out and I smell fraud.
