General Comment

Please don't reduce the initiative of innovators to create new ideas by taking away the process of inter partes review! Well funded groups sue the small innovator to steal their idea while having an overly broad patent of their own, but no right to the unique IP of the small innovator. If you limit the small guy's right to defend themselves via inter partes review the innovation will eventually deteriorate. Patent trolls should not be given an upper hand! Please help us.