I am not a lawyer, I am an engineer (a little smart one, I think) and I believe that if the United States government severely limits the Inter Parte review process, it would take away people's right to prove their innocence when sued by a Patent Troll, making honest, hardworking people automatically found guilty.
Obviously. I do not agree with that aberrant possible situation...