This regulation changes the process, which is already terrible for people and corporations sued by patent trolls, to make Inter Partes Review next to impossible. Abuse of the patent process is rampant and regulatory reform is needed to protect creativity and innovation rather than empower the abusers. That this could come from a conservative executive branch enforces the worst opinions of how conservatives are really tools of folks who twist the rules for personal benefit and destroy the dynamism that has accompanied the growth of the US economy and created real jobs in the USA.
