

PATENTS for HUMANITY

It's not just an invention.

The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office
an agency of the Department of Commerce

Are you using technology
to improve people's lives?

Here's how to increase the return on your investment...

The United States Patent and Trademark Office seeks applicants for its Patents for Humanity awards competition. Businesses, universities, and others using patented technology to aid the less fortunate are invited to apply.

It's not about charity – innovative models show that commercial markets and human progress can go hand in hand.

You could receive

- Accelerated USPTO processing of any technology in your portfolio*
- Recognition by government, media, and industry
- New contacts and opportunities to advance your work

Patents for Humanity provides business incentives for patent holders to tackle the world's most pressing challenges. Anyone who owns or licenses patented technology is eligible.

Past winners include

- Procter & Gamble
- Microsoft
- UC Berkeley
- Sanofi
- Sun Power Corp.
- Becton Dickinson

Participants submit applications describing how they have used a patented technology or product to address humanitarian needs.

Compete in five categories

- Medicine
- Sanitation
- Nutrition
- Energy
- Living Standards

Apply by Dec 4, 2015

Learn more at <http://www.uspto.gov/patentsforhumanity>.

* applies to one eligible matter. See website for details.

