What is a patent examiner?

A patent examiner is a federal employee who examines patent applications to determine whether or not a pat-can be granted for various new inventions—many of which are on the cutting edge of tomorrow’s technological breakthroughs. Patent examiners review two types of applications—design patents and utility patents. Design patents protect the ornamental appearance of an article, e.g. a watch face, while utility patents protect an invention, e.g. the watch itself.

As a patent examiner, you will:

- Search prior art to ensure that an invention is new and unique
- Review patent applications to ensure conformity to formal requirements
- Write office actions communicating your findings on patentability to inventors and patent practitioners

Basic qualifications

Minimum of a Bachelor’s degree in engineering or science. Successful completion of a full 4-year course at an accredited college or university leading to a bachelor’s degree, or higher, that included a major field of study, or specific course requirements, in a variety of engineering and sci-ce disciplines. Check https://uspto.usajobs.gov for the most recent job announcements.

Compensation

Your earning potential is one of the most important aspects of pursuing federal employment. Most agencies use the General Schedule (GS), which is the predominant pay scale for federal employees. The grade level assigned to a position determines the pay level for that job. Most patent examiners start with the USPTO as a GS-7 or GS-9. The accompanying annual salary for that GS range is $61,325 to $93,052. For more information, visit www.opm.gov (keyword: pay).
