Intellectual Property Rights Recordation

U.S. Customs & Border Protection (CBP), a bureau of the Department of Homeland Security, maintains a trademark recordation system for marks registered at the United States Patent and Trademark Office. Parties who register their marks on the principal register may record these marks with U.S. Customs & Border Protection (CBP) to assist in its efforts to prevent the importation of goods that infringe registered marks. The recordation database includes information regarding all recorded marks, including images of these marks. CBP officers monitor imports to prevent the importation of goods bearing infringing marks and can access the recordation database at each of the 328 ports of entry. Holders of registered trademarks and copyrights concerned about imports or exports of infringing goods should record their trademarks and copyrights with the U.S. Customs & Border Protection (CBP).

After the mark is published in the USPTO "Official Gazette", any party who believes it may be damaged by registration of the mark has thirty (30) days from the publication date to file either an opposition to registration or a request to extend the time to oppose.

Trademark Act § 1063: Any person who believes that he would be damaged by the registration of a mark upon the principal register, including the registration of any mark which would be likely to cause dilution by blurring or dilution by tarnishment under section 1125 (c) of this title, may, upon payment of the prescribed fee, file an opposition with the Patent and Trademark Office, stating the grounds therefore, within thirty days after the publication under subsection (a) of section 1062 of this title of the mark sought to be registered. Enforcing your intellectual property rights and protecting your trademark from confusingly similar names is essential and the sole responsibility of the IP owner and not the USPTO (United States Patent and Trademark Office). U.S. Trademark Compliance Office is a trademark registration service to assist you in protecting your intellectual property rights and trademark from possible third party infringement(s). U.S. Trademark Compliance Office is an annual service, which starts upon received payment. Renewal, as deemed necessary by both, IP owner and U.S. Trademark Compliance Office, commences annually on a yearly basis. Please see reverse side for more information and our terms and conditions.
