I am all for extending the deadline. In fact you should make the standard process 24 months. Many of us who have ideas (like me) don't know the process and working our way through a patent in just one year doesn't give us time to concentrate on our product. We spend much of our time learning, filling out paperwork and realizing that we have made mistakes. We then scramble, do a half baked job to meet deadlines and don't do our products justice.

Please make 24 months the standard time allowed.
