

From: Aaron Passman [e-mail address redacted]
Sent: Wednesday, December 07, 2011 8:33 PM
To: SatelliteOffices
Subject: Las Vegas, NV should be considered.

Good airport with frequent flights everywhere.
Good climate and lots of things to do in off hours.
Perfect for seminars with plenty of low cost hotel rooms
Great location to service the western United States
Low taxes and real estate cost is low while unemployment is high.
Sooner or later everyone visits Las Vegas.
Perhaps President Obama will agree and do something he is clearly unhappy with the industry in Las Vegas and has said so.
Obama said that people should not "blow a bunch of cash in Vegas" during a tough recession.

The president targeted Las Vegas last when he was asked about corporate responsibility.

"You can't get corporate jets. You can't go take that trip to Las Vegas...."
Las Vegas, which plays host to many business conferences and conventions, had suffered under the recession like many other areas of the country.

"There's no question that we're feeling the impact of it today, and as far as living in Las Vegas, this has a debilitating effect on our economy," Goodman said.
"We can promote what we're famous for, but it has nothing at all to do with the fact that you can have a serious meeting here in Las Vegas," he added.