For Research and development of health-related effects of electromagnetic energy in the fields of health, information technologies and emerging technologies; risk assessment consultation of safety and health risks, namely, prediction and assessment of health risks to human beings when exposed to electromagnetic fields, as well as prediction and assessment of the safety and efficacy of medical implants and the of the use of therapeutic and diagnostic medical devices on living organisms, and assessment of the efficacy of active and passive medical implants and therapeutic and diagnostic medical devices in treating medical conditions in humans; engineering design services and product compliance assessment in the nature of testing, analysis and evaluation of goods to determine conformity with certification standards; design and development of functionalized human and animal models, namely, design and development of computational anatomical models for biomedical modelling and safety assessment, as well as their functionalization with electrophysiology models, perfusion models, thermoregulation models, tissue models, and the personalization of such anatomical models for treatment simulation; design and development of functionalized human and animal models, namely, non-downloadable computational digital anatomical models for biomedical modelling; safety assessment in the nature of product safety testing; design and development of neuron models, dynamic and heterogeneous tissue models and personalized treatment simulation tools; MRI implant safety assessment in the nature of product safety testing evaluations of passive and active implants for patients undergoing magnetic resonance imaging scans, and providing customized solutions for mitigation of patient risk from radio frequency and gradient fields; MRI implant safety assessment services, namely, computational modelling and design of neuronal stimulation configurations and safety and efficacy optimization for the development and application of active implantable medical devices and electroceuticals; MRI safety testing and test systems, namely, customized product quality evaluations of radiofrequency and gradient field exposure for patients undergoing MRI scans; experimental phantoms, namely, development of phantom products and designs of new phantom technologies, development of physical multi-layer phantoms for evaluation of over the air device performance, specific absorption rate (SAR) and temperature rise, and for the optimization of on-body and implanted transceivers; electromagnetic fields (EMF) exposure systems, namely, design and development of customized exposure systems for in vitro, in vivo, and human studies on interactions of electromagnetic fields with living tissue; development of effective and selective neurostimulation solutions for research and industry for in silico, in vitro, in vivo, and human studies and applied research on interactions of electromagnetic fields with living tissue and therapeutic or diagnostic applications thereof; MRI safety phantom development for new technologies for implantable devices and medical implants; radio communication safety evaluation, namely, technical support services in the nature of troubleshooting of problems with radio communication platform development from device design to regulatory approval, and also for testing, analysis and evaluation of radio communication platforms to assure compliance with industry standards and to extend standardized procedures to other platforms, validating modifications with simulations and measurements, and communicating the changes to regulators; assessment of specific absorption rate exposure, namely, health risk assessment of voluntary and involuntary electromagnetic fields exposure ranging from the static to the terahertz frequencies, in the nature of prediction and assessment of health risks to the general public for research, industry and for public and private agencies; wireless power transfer assessment, namely, development and testing of dosimetric probes and testing, analysis and evaluation of the dosimetric probes to assure compliance of wireless power transfer (WPT) technologies with safety guidelines and industry standards; design and development of in- and on-body antennas, namely, design of electrically small, resonant and non-resonant antennas with optimized link budgets in complex environments, and also designing considering anatomical variability and current safety regulations; precision medicine applications, namely, design of radio frequency applicators and ultrasonic transducers for therapeutic applications; Technical support services, namely, data processing in the nature of analysis and segmentation of patient image data to generate personalised anatomical models for treatment planning, life sciences simulations, or in silico clinical trials; Technical support services, namely, data acquisition and/or evaluation in the nature of characterization of incident fields, namely, determining electromagnetic and/or acoustic exposure to assess safety and efficacy of voluntary or involuntary exposure to electromagnetic, acoustic, fluid dynamic, and mechanical fields and forces and for electromagnetic compatibility assessment; Technical support services, namely, data acquisition and/or analysis in the nature of focusing and tuning the effects of electromagnetic and/or acoustic exposure, namely, targeting localized electromagnetic and/or acoustic exposure and assessing shape of the overall distribution of the exposure and its biological impact; Technical support services, namely, computer modelling, analysis and evaluation of the treatment effects, namely, medical image-based modelling to generate realistic anatomical models for computational life sciences simulations, treatment modeling and treatment planning, and computational prediction of resulting biological and therapeutic effects; computational life sciences, namely, support services in virtual testing of diverse medical diagnostic and therapeutic applications using multi-scale and multi-physics computer simulations, medical image-based modeling, simulation platform and solver development; computational life sciences, namely, device safety testing and efficacy evaluation, namely, technical support service in the nature of testing and evaluation to improve performance safety and efficacy of therapeutic and diagnostic medical devices, body-worn devices, power transfer devices, and telecommunication equipment; computational life sciences, namely, scientific investigation to develop mechanistic understanding of biological and physiological responses to physical exposure of living organisms and tissues to electromagnetic, acoustic, fluid dynamic, and mechanical fields and forces for scientific research purposes;
computational life sciences, namely, dielectric characteristics evaluation of the properties of tissue and other material samples by taking measurements to determine the dielectric characterization properties of tissue and other material samples for scientific research purposes and to provide modeling parameters for computational life sciences support services as specified above.

MARK INFORMATION

Description of the Mark
The mark consists of an image of the Earth shaped like a heart. This heart shaped earth is atop a hand--with thumb, index and middle fingers evident, palm up, cupped to cradle the Earth--extended perpendicular from the wrist, roughly 3/5ths of the forearm shown then fading to obscurity. Evidence of a slight portion of the Pacific Ocean is apparent to the far left of this Earth; North America, Central America and South America then extend from the Pacific Ocean to cover much of the left 1/3 of the Earth; the Atlantic Ocean is in the middle; to the immediate right of the Atlantic Ocean is Europe and Africa; in the upper right portion of the Earth is much of Asia; to the left of Africa and below Asia, covering the central-right-bottom of the Earth is the Pacific Ocean; to the left of Africa is a portion of Madagascar. The words "Earthians Care" are centered beneath the hand near the bottom of the image, "Earthians" is placed above "Care". The Earth is of green continents, oceans in differing shades of iridescent blue, with translucent white conveying the rays of the sun and a very thin white line to highlight much of the continents' perimeters, the hand and forearm are a medium brown, the letters are in a green consistent with the color of the continents. Color
