The mark consists of the instruments in the upper register (Flute, Clarinet, Horns, Trumpets, Violins, and Violas) playing an abrupt crescendo on a D major chord. By contrast, the lower register, covered by the cellos, basses, and left hand of the piano, hold an E, causing tension. The piano does a quick triplet run up a D major scale, leaping by a sixth from B to F#, at the same time the lower register moves down a whole step to a D. This leap in the piano emphasizes the resolution of the low notes coming into a consonant harmony with the upper.
