Mark Literal(s)

The mark consists of three gender symbols which are positioned horizontally next to each other in the order of male, child, and female. The male and female symbols are identical in height and the child symbol stands at three-fourths of the height of the male and female symbols. Each of the three symbols possesses what appears as the head portion of the symbols. The head portions are in the form of circles and the circles are disconnected from what appears as the body portion of the symbols. Inside the circumference of each circle is a white five-point star in which each of the five points meets the border of circle shape and the remaining portion of the circle is blue. A white line separates the body portion of the male and female symbols at what appears as the waist area and the wrist of the outer arms. The upper body portion of the male and female symbol is blue and the lower body portion of the male and female symbol is red. The entire portion of what appears as the body of the child symbol is red. The inner arms of the male and female symbols are positioned in an upward manner, thus reaching a point where they meet and in such a way that resembles a home over what appears as the child symbol's head.
